

Cancer and The Lion

I have done major research on the Dandelion now for the past two years. It not only makes cancer cells self destruct without hurting your good cells it also builds up your immune system so you can fight off any future bout's with cancer or any other disease.

Even stops cold and flu's in their tracks. It is really good for Prostate, Colon, Breast, Bone, Bladder Cancer along with Leukemia. It will work for others too some just take a bit longer to react, one needs patience and the (EFT) tapping treatment would sure help with that.

EFT is used to lower Cortisol levels in the body by reducing any emotional stress a person may have. Lowered Cortisol allows the body to enter into a natural healing state. This is an important step in the healing process without it your body's digestive system is restricted in taking up the nutrients it needs to effectively heal itself. What my wife and I do, is every morning I go out now since they are starting their season and dig up one plant. Root, Leaves and a couple small buds where the flower will be. Do this in an area where pesticides and herbicides have not been used. You may have to take a visit to the country or a neighbor's yard.

I then bring it in for the wife and she washes it and grinds it up and then puts it in a pot with about two cups of water and simmers it. Make sure you don't boil it as that removes all the good things. About ten minutes is enough, stirring it once in awhile.

She then strains it into our cups and we drink it. Not to bad neither and if you like you can add a dash of sugar but not much. Main thing we should all be trying to get away from white sugar. I use our local maple syrup. Turbinado sugar it is made from Cane and pretty much raw much better for us or raw cane sugar. Still no sugar is really healthy as you know. Sugar has been scientifically proven to fuel Cancer cells and promote their growth.

You can drink dandelion tea twice a day if you want to. Makes you strong and feeling good. I would try a half a cup and see how it goes. I haven't heard of anyone being allergic to it but one never knows. If you're allergic to salads and things well maybe then but if not you're OK. That is one treatment for anyone that has cancer or without.

Another way to do them up (for winter storage) is as follows. I will start soon as they come out in full force here and start to dig a bunch of them mostly the roots. I take a shovel shove down beside them and move it around some to loosen the root then, pull it out by hand very slowly. They will break, but doing it this way you get a good long piece.

Once I have gathered up a bunch I take them in the house cut them up and dry them. I don't take the dirty off I leave it on. You can shake it off and once dry more dirt will fall off, pretty much all of it.

Now you make sure they are dry to where they snap. I dry mine in my oven as it is propane stove and it has a pilot light and dries them perfectly. Key here is you don't want to heat them up above 104 Degrees F. Very important as that would kill all the good things.

I also hang them like one would do onions from a high place where the air can circulate around them. . Once dry I take the whole root break it in half and put them in mason jars for winter or should say wife does. Need about four good quart jars for winter. Then come winter I take a cup full grind them up with a mortar and pestle, works great.

We also do the same with the whole plant roots leaves and buds and dry them all together washing them then drying them. Then do the same in jars for winter now that is what you use for your tea each day.

The roots though, with a touch of dirt on them is major good for all cancers, one teaspoon a day in a glass of cold water. You take it for or till your stomach feels a bit acidly.

Mine took six months then once that happens you cut back to a half a teaspoon and keep doing that till your down to nothing. You have to learn what your body needs and how it feels. Once done your cancer is gone and or your body is built up to where it should be. Simple and has worked great for me and quite a few more folks that has come and asked how to do it. Good results all way round.

I also keep tabs on my PH these days with strips you can buy online cheap. There is nothing better than they are to find out how your body is perkin'. Most folks that have cancer or their body is sick are very acidic. Mine was about five. Not to good for sure LOL so I changed my diet and now got it up to 7.0 to 7.4 trying to get it to 7.6.

Just takes some time again one has to learn patience. Cancer loves it (PH level) anywhere lower than 6.5, thrives in it. Kind of like our soil it should also be about 7 to 7.5 to grow good crops. Pretty amazing but then it isn't, as we are earth. I recommend every one should keep tabs on your PH. Using the strips you can check your Urine first thing in the morning it should be reading around 6.5 or a bit higher. Best to do it before you eat or drink anything. You can check it through the day just make sure you do it about two hours after you eat or drink anything. SO there you go my friend for the Dandelion part anyways.

My friend George came to me a couple of years back with worries he had over the cancer in his body. I shared with him how to use EFT to clear the negative emotional events he had experienced in his early life. We then talked in length about nutrition and the body's need for the correct fuel to heal. George is an avid gardener and has taught me many tricks to growing a healthier garden without any need for pesticides and herbicides.

The closer we can get ourselves to our own food source the better. Even someone living in a high rise apartment building can plant flower boxes with some vegetables and enjoy the natural richness of everything nature has to offer. These foods you grow are far higher in minerals and vitamins than you can purchase through any store even organically and taste so much better. With limited planting space consider dark leave vegetables like Spinach, Broccoli and peppers. Even a small plant of Tomatoes will give you tons of natural nutrients. You can freeze extra vegetables and enjoy their flavor even during the winter months. It is amazing how much food a few plants will produce.

I hope you enjoyed this post and if you want to share it, please share it in it's entirety so no parts of the message George and I have shared with you are lost.

Have a Happier, Healthier, more Prosperous day!
